

International Journal of Applied Dental Sciences

Editorial

As we all know that correct knowledge should reach every mind in the nook and corner of the world to uplift the quality of life of every individual.

Perfect spread of knowledge and its application to mankind can only take place through sharing in electronic media only if knowledge is accurate and unbiased.

As an editor it's my responsibility to maintain the credibility and authenticity of this journal. This can only happen with complete cooperation and active participation of all people associated with this journal and authors.

Our minds is like fertile soil and the productivity of which is dependent on the quality of seeds that we sow. Other environmental factors should be in accordance to nature and if it's against then there will be destruction of mankind.

As always we are awaiting response from authors from various places in the world to contribute to this journal and thus contribute towards the research and development. Let's all of us join hands towards the betterment of society by contributing towards research and development.

There is an increase in dentist to patient ratio in the population but it can be only helpful if the dentists are properly equipped to handle oral health problems. The urge for improvement should always be there in the mind of every emerging dentist. The role of electronic media can be emphasized as it helps to equip the dentists and associated auxiliaries to better handle the emerging oral health problems by adapting new technologies backed with proof of clinical efficacy.

Wishing everyone all the best

Dr. Raghavendraswamy K.N.
(Editor in chief)